DID YOU KNOW?

Isreali Garbage Pail Kids are called Havurat Hazevel. They were commonly stuck into sticker books making unpeeled versions extremely rare!

GARBAGE PAIL KIDS MARKETPLACE COLLECTOR FEATURE...

DEATHSTAR DOV

The GPK collector and die hard Star Wars fan shows off some of his most prized possessions.

I was not originally aware of GPK's until second and third series in 1986. I was 12 or 13. They were all the rage in elementary school. No one in my class had any series 1 until much later. I collected them for a few series and probably traded them away over the next few years as it became not cool to collect "kid stuff" in my later teens.

So many cool toys and collectibles went away in that period. I think it's different for kids today.

So in 2010 I started going back and getting all the OS sets. I have a fairly complete variation set but I am still missing a few. I drew the line at the asterisk variations. I still keep up with new releases but no sketches or parallels. I am really into seeing the art, the gags, and the names but I try not to get the same card art over and over again. Sometimes I fail.

Since Lucasfilm was also a Topps licensee and not fond of being made fun of there are for the most part no Star Wars references in GPK other than Ashcan Andy in first series. One did slip into an ANS Wacky Packages series and of course I missed that one too.

My wife Sarah Jo Marks and I run a company, DKE Toys (www.dketoy.com) which started selling vintage Star Wars toys over 20 years ago and evolved into a designer toy distribution company. In 2016 we sold the distribution part of the business and now focus on the "bootleg" resin action figure scene (note: they are not really bootlegs). Over this period of time I started to pick up cards and stickers made by artists and fans who used GPK themes in their work and finally was able to start finding GPK Star Wars references in art!!!

GARBAGE PAIL KIDS MARKETPLACE COLLECTOR FEATURE...

DEATHSTAR DOV

This piece was done by John Pound in 1993 for the first Topps Star Wars Galaxy series. Lucasfilm rejected it and it was not actually published as a card until a "Lost Galaxy" subset in Topps Galaxy 4 in 2009.

I managed to find the color rough for os1 Ashcan Andy by John Pound on eBay some years ago. Unfortunately there were virtually no pencils for series 1. The pencils are supposedly underneath the color finals. All that remains of the original pencils are this photocopy that was painted on, considered the color rough.

A painting we commissioned by Mark Pingatore later released as a signed print. This is the "Light Side".

GARBAGE PAIL KIDS MARKETPLACE COLLECTOR FEATURE...

DEATHSTAR DOV

The follow up "Dark Side" a year or two later also released as a print.

A fantastic painting by Luis Diaz.

I asked Buff Monster if he would spoof Ashcan Andy in his series the Melty Misfits so I could buy the original. This came out in series 2.

GARBAGE PAIL KIDS MARKETPLACE COLLECTOR FEATURE...

DEATHSTAR DOV

I always knew Topps did not sell the original Adam Bomb art. We saw it at their booth at NYCC in 2012. In 2015 the opportunity presented itself and we jumped at the chance. It was not Star Wars and it was more money than we ever spent on anything (except for a house). And while it seemed completely nuts at the time the deal is looking better and better all the time.

GARBAGE PAIL KIDS MARKETPLACE COLLECTOR FEATURE...

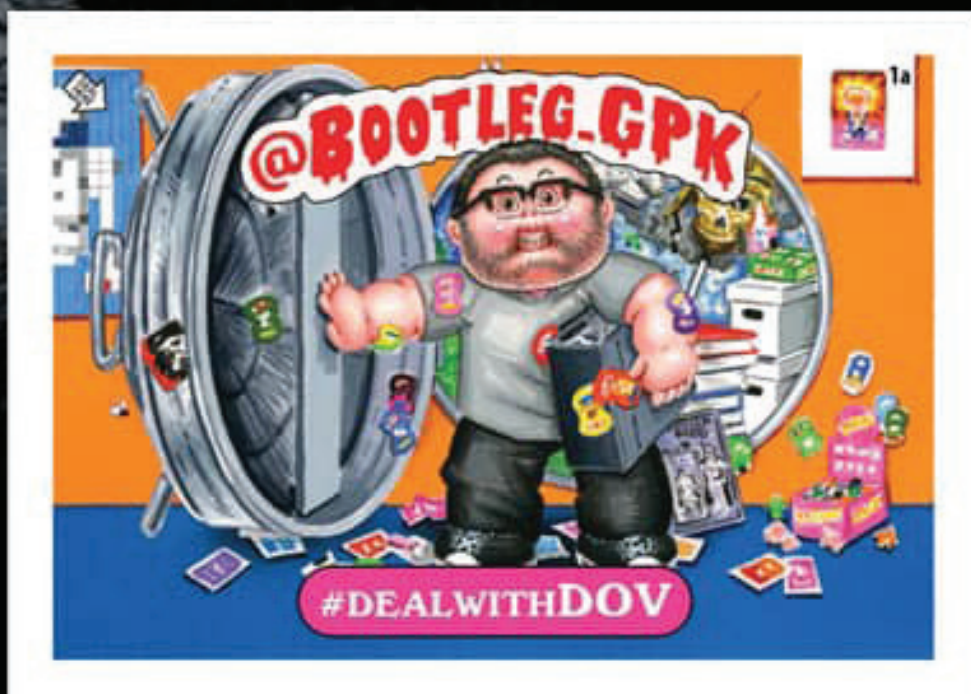

DEATHSTAR DOV

Topps asked Brent Engstrom to paint Adam's legs. If you ever see him standing, these legs were the ones digitally composited with the John Pound art to create that image.

I have an Instagram account @bootleg_gpk where I showcase the collection of artist and fan produced GPK references we find in the world.

If you would like a free promo card, please reach out to me!

Dov Kelemer can be reached dketoys AT gmail DOT com and on instagram @dketoys @bootleg_gpk

While we do have a FB page @dketoys it is unfortunately not monitored

Note from Jeremiah: I want to thank Dov so much for taking the time to share some cool stuff from his collection. Truly awesome stuff! I've known Dov for about 4 years now and he's a great guy that I wish would break down and join the MP one day, because he's missing out on all the fun group stuff :)

Thats the end of our first Collector Feature, I hope you all enjoyed it and look forward to the next one!!!
